Just In Time For Easter

Mrs. V. A. (Dixie) Staten, Stonewall District, evidently has taught her pupils well the art of decorating eggs because here's a table of duck eggs, goose eggs and chicken eggs done up with jewels and gilt and elaborate enough for the most discerning Easter egg hunter. Mary Alma Hudson, Eileen LeGrand and Jean LeGrand (above) are three of the pupils of a group of ten exhibitors at Fidelity National Bank, Main Street. Most of the eggs contain tiny figurines, Easter bunnies, a bride & groom, ballerina, etc. and for the non-egg decorator there remain many questions. How long would it take to do such precision work? How many broken eggs does it take before an egg artist can call herself successful? The artists represented at Fidelity also include Mrs. R. H. Thornhill, Mrs. Bessie Rhoades, Mrs. Edith Scruggs, Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson, Mrs. Cheryl LeGrand and Mrs. J. W. Pratt.

W.A. Hunter, Jr. Is Awarded Scholarship

HAMPDEN-SYDNEY –Hampden-Sydney College, one of the oldest liberal arts colleges in America, has announced the awarding of eight Baker Scholarships to members of the freshman class which will enroll in September. The figure represents one of the largest number of grants awarded at one time since the scholarship program was established at the Presbyterian-affiliated institution in 1967.

Baker Scholars, as the recipients are designated, are chosen on the basis of proven scholarship and leadership potential as evidenced by secondary school accomplishments, and must possess the highest respect of their contemporaries. Those selected for the four-year grants were among finalists from over 60 candidates, and visited the campus recently to be interviewed by a special selection committee composed of business leaders from across Virginia.

According to John H. Waters, director of admissions and financial aid, the recipients are Steven A. Curtis and Luther H. Dudley of Alexandria; William A. Hunter, Jr., Appomattox; Frank C. Bedinger III, Boydton; James B. McVeigh, Jr., Lynchburg; Ernest E. DeConti, Richmond; William D. Paxton, Salem; and George E. Case, III, Spartanburg, S.C.

William A. Hunter, Jr., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, Sr. of RFD 1, Appomattox, and is presently a student at Southside Virginia Community College in Keysville. He is a graduate of Randolph-Henry High School, Charlotte Court House, where he was president of the senior class, Youth Fellowship and National Honor Society, co-captain of the basketball team and tri-captain of the football team, was a member of the Senior Planning Board and track team, and was a delegate to Boy's State. Listed in "Who's Who in American High Schools," he is a past recipient of the Reader's Digest Award.

Baker scholarships are awarded nationally by selected liberal arts institutions and are provided by the George F. Baker Trust, which was created by the will of George F. Baker, Jr., late chairman of the First National Bank, City of New York.

Individual grants range in value up to total college expenses.
